The Plasticity of Cognitive Maps Lab

Research Projects

The Plasticity of Cognitive Maps Lab focuses on understanding strategies used by humans when learning spatial awareness and spatial relations. Ongoing projects consist of implementing tasks of serial learning and EEG recordings. Opportunities in the lab include running participants (e.g., behavioral tasks), design/carrying forth of methodologies and data analysis, and collaborative works with other institutions and PIs. Previous experience with EEG recordings preferred.

Contact Information

Contact	Role	Email
Tina Kao	PI	tk2436@columbia.edu